Professional Benchmark Learning to Strengthen Enforcement Competence

AEA Holds 2025 Seminar on Objection Statements and Enforcement Cases, Focusing on Personal Data Legal Reforms and New Insurance Policy Enforcement Mechanisms

To enhance the professional competence of Administrative Enforcement Officers and deepen their understanding of legal practices, the Administrative Enforcement Agency (AEA), Ministry of Justice, held the “2025 Seminar on Legal and Practical Issues of Objection Statements” and the “Administrative Enforcement Case Study Seminar” on September 26, 2025. The event was presided over by Director-General MIAO JHUO-RAN and attended by Chief Senior Administrative Enforcement Officers and Administrative Enforcement Officers from all branches. Through professional benchmark learning, the seminar aimed to strengthen participants’ expertise and professional capacity.

Focusing on the Latest Reforms in Personal Data Legislation

The seminar featured a diverse and informative programs, including two keynote speeches, case study discussions, and business briefings.

The first keynote speech was delivered by Deputy Director Chi-Yun Cheng of the Preparatory Office of the Personal Data Protection

Commission on the topic “From Point Protection to Global Governance: The Transformation and Strategies of Personal Data Legal Framework.” Deputy Director Cheng provided an in-depth analysis of the latest trends in personal data protection legislation, beginning with an overview of international digital policy developments and Taiwan’s key regulatory focuses. He also elaborated on major amendments to the Personal Data Protection Act, including the establishment of a Data Protection Officer system, the strengthening of incident notification mechanisms, and the enhancement of internal supervision structures. As administrative enforcement frequently involves the collection, processing, and use of large volumes of personal data, these new legal reforms will have a significant impact on enforcement practices.

Exploring the New Framework for Insurance Policy Enforcement

The second keynote speech was delivered by Section Chief Che-Wei Chang of the Insurance Bureau, Financial Supervisory Commission, on the topic “Key Amendments to Insurance Act Concerning the Compulsory Enforcement of Insurance Policies.” Focusing on the new legal framework for the compulsory enforcement of life insurance policies, Section Chief Chang detailed three major amendments: specifying the types of insurance that cannot be subject to attachment or compulsory enforcement, introducing the step-in right mechanism adopted abroad, and refining related supporting measures. He also explained relevant operational procedures and addressed common public inquiries to help enforcement officers accurately understand the new system and ensure lawful and proper enforcement practices.

Commending Outstanding Officers, Strengthening Practical Exchange and Professional Growth

During the seminar, seven colleagues were commended for their outstanding enforcement performance, including Branch Director Li of the Hsinchu Branch; Chief Enforcement Officer Li of the Taoyuan Branch; Enforcement Officer Liu of the Pingtung Branch; Enforcement Officer Hung of the Shilin Branch; Enforcement Officer Ko of the Yilan Branch; Enforcement Officer Lu of the Taichung Branch; and Enforcement Officer Chen of the Shilin Branch. The amounts collected by these officers ranged from over NT$100 million to more than NT$40 million, demonstrating the enforcement authorities' professional capacity in effectively safeguarding the State's claims through diverse enforcement strategies.

The seminar also featured a presentation by Chief Senior Administrative Enforcement Officer Chia-Yuan Yang of the Hsinchu Branch, who shared practical experiences on "Application of Legal and Accounting Information in Major Debtor Cases." The Ethics Office of the AEA reported on the provisions of the "Public Interest Whistleblower Protection Act," while the Legal Affairs Division explained the recent regulatory changes and practical responses related to insurance enforcement. The Case Review Division provided updates on key initiatives, including the Major Debtor Enforcement Project, the "5 Against and 7 Safety" Joint Auction, and the Alcohol Addiction Referral Program.

Implementing Anti-Fraud Initiatives with Innovation to Safeguard the Public and the Nation

continue learning and adapting to the rapidly evolving enforcement landscape. While the AEA is actively promoting the “Joint Auction of 5 Against and 7 Safety Cases and Anti-Fraud Promotion Project” and is planning to hold a nationwide joint auction on November 11, 2025, to demonstrate its firm commitment to implementing anti-fraud policies and protecting the rights and interests of the public.

Director-General Miao emphasized that the AEA will continue to uphold the Ministry of Justice’s six core governance principles—integrity and impartial law enforcement, adherence to due process, effective use of technology, coordination with government policies, timely response to public opinion, and compassionate enforcement. The AEA will keep improving enforcement skills and innovating methods to contribute its utmost efforts to maintaining the rule of law and safeguarding the rights of the people.
